This play, a set text for National 5 English, is the story of three women in war-torn Belfast. Although their men have been killed or imprisoned for their political activities, everyday life must go on. However, the arrival of a disturbing young girl and the revelations which follow threaten to disrupt their friendship. The main themes are largely domestic - relationships between women and within families, dreams and homemaking. The language is colloquial with Irish idioms, and many contemporary references, and there is a poignant ending. The play is aimed at students of English, particularly those studying National 5 English. In 1991 Rona Munro won the Susan Smith Blackburn Award and "The Evening Standard" Most Promising Playwright Award for "Bold Girls".

The Kemp and Young series is designed to provide an introduction to the topic covered that will be suitable and useful for both those who are newly at sea and those whose practical experience is limited to narrow areas and wish to expand their knowledge. The concise presentation of the subject matter is made possible by the reduction of the work to its simplest terms. This is generally achieved through the omission of unnecessary mathematics or mathematical concepts, and the generous use of diagrams and illustrations. Where appropriate, worked examples are used to reiterate the points being made in the text and will be found useful in furthering the reader's knowledge of the subject and familiarity with the contents. Rapid reference to the substance of each topic can be made by use of a carefully constructed index.
