Join father/son team G. L. and Glenn Cook in their exploration of the Bible to understand God's ultimate plan for everlasting peace, joy, and happiness on the earth. Peace on Earth: Millennium of King Jesus is the writers' authoritative compendium of eschatological texts, especially relating to the futuristic years when Jesus Christ will return to the earth at the Battle of Armageddon and afterward, bring everlasting peace to all nations on the earth. It is good news! Biblical evidence and details are presented to demonstrate how King Jesus will literally establish his 1,000-year, theocratic, world-dominating government. As John G. Hall, one of the writers' favorite professors of biblical eschatology, once stated, "If you don't believe King Jesus and his saints will be riding white horses when he returns to the earth, then you can just walk and I will ride."

There is a world within our own-beneath, below, not visible to our eyes but never far away. We can neither touch nor feel nor smell it. We do not even think it real. Still, it is there. It is the world of the angels. Their world is our world but void of ugliness and fear and death and pain. Its buildings are pristine, its cities glorious, its lawns are still and deep, and its winged inhabitants the most beautiful creatures you can imagine. From this world of beauty and peace, two angels-Amber and her daughter Pearl-do what is forbidden and cross into our world, landing in a dark back alley somewhere in a seedy part of Detroit. They should not be here. They should not have come. For once here, they are bound by the same laws we are. And now the unthinkable happens: before they can return home, Pearl is murdered by a street gang. Amber, for the first time experiencing human emotions, is soon consumed by powerful thoughts of revenge. From that moment on, she begins to slip ever deeper into the darkness of her own hatred until almost nothing of her is left. On the other side of town, John Engels, a research scientist, realizes to his own surprise and terror, that he might be the only one who can possibly stop her before she follows through with her plan of killing all those responsible for her daughter's death. For if he cannot stop her, if she falls, the world-our world-will fall with her.

By centering Black girls, the book considers the ethical responsibility of researchers to focus upon the words of our participants, not only as a means to better understand our historic and current world, but to better situate inquiry for what the future world and future research could look like. Ultimately, this book decenters traditional, white-centered qualitative methods and utilizes Afrofuturism as an onto-epistemological tool and ethical premise. It asks researchers to consider how we move forward in data collection, data analysis, and data representation by centering how Black girls reclaim and recover the past, counter negative and elevate positive realities that exist in the present, and create new possibilities for the future. American Book Award Winner: A "stunning" memoir of surviving WWII Latvia—and the long journey to healing that followed (The New York Times Book Review). "A heartbreaking yet inspiring memoir of tragedy and healing," A Woman in Amber tells the story of how the occupation of Latvia during World War II affected a woman 's relationship with her mother and husband for years to come (Tim O 'Brien). Though Agate Nesaule eventually immigrated to the United States and became successful in her professional life, she found herself suffering from depression and unable to come to terms with its cause—until she found her voice and began to share what happened to her and her family at the hands of invading Russian soldiers. In a true story that "draws the reader forward with the suspense of a novel," Nesaule reveals the effects of hunger, both physical and emotional, in stories about begging Russian soldiers for food, the abusive relationship with her first husband, and the redemption that came when she met her second (The New York Times Book Review).
