Out With Old in With the NewA tale of the political, economic and social struggle between the generations, Young and Old. The battle line has been drawn as new legislation is drawn up by a social justice movement campaigning for equality between the generations. This story follows the struggles of the Older generation as they are pushed aside in employment, housing and, ultimately, life. The book is full of drama and political manipulation as the discrimination of the Older generation unfurls. Bill, a very ordinary widower, find himself with his neighbors, Hank and Jane, in the maelstrom of political events. The dramatic story follows the effects that the push for 'equality' had on their quiet life. They find themselves betrayed and pushed aside by the politics, society and eventually, even family.

For the first time, this volume explores the identities of leprosy sufferers and other people affected by the disease in medieval Europe. The chapters, including contributions by leading voices such as Luke Demaitre, Carole Rawcliffe and Charlotte Roberts, challenge the view that people with leprosy were uniformly excluded and stigmatised. Instead, they reveal the complexity of responses to this disease and the fine line between segregation and integration. Ranging across disciplines, from history to bioarchaeology, Leprosy and identity in the Middle Ages encompasses post-medieval perspectives as well as the attitudes and responses of contemporaries. Subjects include hospital care, diet, sanctity, miraculous healing, diagnosis, iconography and public health regulation. This richly illustrated collection presents previously unpublished archival and material sources from England to the Mediterranean.

Graham Richards was shopping with his family at an outlet mall when an active shooter began indiscriminately murdering people with a rifle. Graham was shot in the face and when he woke up in the hospital, his family was dead. And now, all he wants is to be left alone. Living out in the woods, growing his own food, and using solar power for his energy needs, he hopes to live the rest of his life in obscurity. But when a little girl goes missing in the nearby town, the strange, scarred man in the lonely cabin is the first suspect and Graham finds himself being pulled back into the world he wanted to leave behind.
