Disaster Management is an intended textbook for students pursuing a first and intermediate course on the subject in any undergraduate programme, especially engineering courses like civil, structural, geotechnical engineering and other specialized courses on the subject. The latest AICTE and the earlier UGC model curriculums have been extensively consulted to design the contents of the book. Knowledge of research methodology is essential for all who either play an active role in conducting research or desire to keep themselves updated in the field of knowledge. Keeping this in mind, this edition has been thoroughly revised. The book contains an up-to-date account of the methods and techniques suited to the field of education and other allied disciplines and thus provides an understanding of significant research problems that need to be tackled. The book elaborates the quantitative and qualitative data analysis techniques; use of descriptive and inferential statistics; reporting of the results of research along with the characteristics and uses of historical, descriptive, ethnographic and experimental methods. Case studies form an important part of the text. It also provides priority areas of educational research in India in the context of National Education Policy (1986) and its Programme of Action (1992), UGC, DEC-IGNOU (2006), NCERT (2005), and UNESCO initiatives and policies as well as the Surveys of Research in Education (1997 and 2006). Designed and written mainly for the students of M.A. (Education, Psychology and Sociology), M.Ed. and M.Phil. (Education, Psychology and Sociology), the book will be of immense value to the Ph.D. students and other researchers of Social Sciences, Biological Sciences, Management, Legal Studies, Humanities and Languages.

This volume will also be indispensable for postgraduate courses dealing with quantitative techniques and data analysis.

Demystifying Postgraduate Research Anchor Academic Publishing

Research methodology is taught as a supporting subject in several ways in many academic disciplines such as education, psychology, social work, library studies and marketing research. The core philosophical base for this book comes from my conviction that, although these disciplines vary in content, their broad approach to a research enquiry is similar. This book, therefore, is addressed to these academic disciplines and business people. This textbook provides the readers with an understanding of the Introduction to Research, types of research, Steps in Research Process, Identification of Research Problems, Importance of Review of Literature, Research Design, Methods of Data Collection, Hypothesis, Sampling Techniques, Introduction to SPSS, Descriptive Statistics, Cross tabulation, One Sample t-Test, Paired Sample t-test, One Way ANOVA, Two Way ANOVA, Factorial ANOVA, MANOVA, Chi-Square Test, Non- Parametric Test, MANN Whitney Test, Wilcoxon Test, Kruskal -Wallis Test, Friedman Test, Correlation Analysis, Multiple Regression Analysis, Factor Analysis, Cluster Analysis, Multi - Dimensional Scaling, Discriminate Analysis , Canonical Correlation, Overview of Structural Equation Model (SEM) and Report Writing. It uses simple examples to demystify complex theories and methodologies. This well-organized book deals with the variety of research methods and tools used in management and social sciences with application of SPSS. A Handbook of Research Methodology is recommended for use in undergraduate and postgraduate courses focusing on research methodologies in various disciplines. The edition contains significant additional input in almost every chapter of the book. It provided enhanced insights into issues from emerging countries' business. The practical examples covers all aspects of parametric and non - parametric test which is relevant for business in these emerging countries. This edition includes several new cases and examples which would help students comprehend the research methodologies illustrated in each chapter. This edition will equip students with the knowledge of skills involved in this basic research process.

Middle India and Rural-Urban Development explores the socio-economic conditions of an 'India' that falls between the cracks of macro-economic analysis, sectoral research and micro-level ethnography. Its focus, the 'middle India' of small towns, is relatively unknown in scholarly terms for good reason: it requires sustained and difficult field research. But it is where most Indians either live or constantly visit in order to buy and sell, arrange marriages and plot politics. Anyone who wants to understand India therefore needs to understand non-metropolitan, provincial, small-town India and its economic life. This book meets this need. From 1973 to the present, Barbara Harriss-White has watched India's development through the lens of an ordinary town in northern Tamil Nadu, Arni. This book provides a pluralist, multi-disciplinary and inter-disciplinary perspective on Arni and its rural hinterland. It grounds general economic processes in the social specificities of a given place and region. In the process, continuity is juxtaposed with abrupt change. A strong feature of the book is its analysis of how government policies that fail to take into account the realities of small town life in India have unintended and often perverse consequences. In this unique book, Harriss-White brings together ten essays written by herself and her research team on Arni and its surrounding rural areas. They track the changing nature of local business and the workforce; their urban-rural relations, their regulation through civil society organizations and social practices, their relations to the state and to India's accelerating and dynamic growth. That most people live outside the metropolises holds for many other developing countries and makes this book, and the ideas and methods that frame it, highly relevant to a global development audience.
