Beth Williams is a substitute teacher assigned to Springfield High School. Bradley Truman is a senior at Springfield High and a science enthusiast. Working on Bradley's year-end science requirement, they accidently develop an innovative system. A system which converts saltwater into fresh water. Their relationship grows from friendship to romance. With Bradley's dad, the three are soon immersed in climate change politics. Traveling overseas, Beth and Bradley become the targets of a violent politician who wants their invention and their lives destroyed. This adventure is about the strength of family ties, the challenge of a student-teacher relationship, and the desire to honor God. Set in the background of today's climate change predictions, this book will encourage readers to trust their faith in God.

Anthony Jay shows you how the new science of management is a continuation of the old art of government. By looking at your own corporate organization in a political/historical context, you can fully understand its power structure - what Machiavelli wrote about statecraft in the sixteenth century holds true for business and management in the late twentieth century. Applying Machiavellian precepts to such modern corporations as General Motors, Apple Computer, and Microsoft, Jay discovers self-contained states with courtiers and diplomats, orthodoxy and heresy lurking under their smooth corporate veneers. Though humorous, Jay's message is clear. To understand the workings of corporation or states, you must understand the nature and behavior of their leaders. And that hasn't changed since the Middle Ages.

I'm a successful businessman... I've got more passion for my job than most will ever have. Nothing could ever pull me away from my dreams. No one could distract me from my climb to the top. At least, that was how it was before I met Rachel... With flowing black hair and the body of a goddess, I was completely enamoured by her. She brought fire to my life and I believed it would never end. Once we married, everything was perfect. There was a new passion in my life that greeted me every day, when I returned from work. Her presence made everything amazing. I began to prosper, earning promotion after promotion at work. I had everything I ever could have wanted. So why, when everything was so perfectly wonderful, did Rachel stop loving me? I worked so hard to take care of her. When I returned home after a long day, why was I no longer greeted by my beautiful, adoring wife? For what seemed like an eternity, I was deprived. In all honesty, I'm a man of lust. I have a lot of needs that are no longer fulfilled by my wife. I'm trapped in a loveless, dry marriage with no hope of recovery... What can I do? Like I said, I have needs. It took my months of desperation to realize that there are so many stunning women at my workplace, all with their own desires. If my wife won't give me what I need, I might as well seek it elsewhere. WARNING This book is part of Aurelia Hilton's hot, sexy & steamy romance novel... Things will get hot & steamy... Find out what happens when a man needs his lust fulfilled... because it's wild

Operation Saltwater Heritage Builders

In the summer of 1949 fifteen smokejumpers parachuted into a remote Montana canyon called Mann Gulch. It started as a very small fire in rugged country but within two hours after landing, thirteen of these young men were caught in a raging inferno and were killed. They died bravely, together with their friends, and in the service of their country. Everyone was young and attractive, healthy and strong, enthusiastic and in love. They were bursting into the prime of their lives. There were no malcontents here. Everyone did their best but events overtook them. Until now the actual time line has never been connected to the people involved. Fire in Montana connects the lives of young smokejumpers who lived with a joy of life and expectations of shining futures, the forest rangers and volunteers who fought valiantly to rescue them, and their families, lovers, and friends who were forced to wait and pray, then face the devastating and heart wrenching loss.
