In this book, Dr. Li and his author team plan to emphasize why mouse models are useful in vivo systems for understanding disease mechanisms and developing therapeutic strategies in blood cancers. The authors do not intend to cover all types of blood cancers; instead, they will focus on some major ones such as leukemias and lymphomas. However, the authors will try to cover as much as they can the cancer types and point out that many blood cancers need to be studied in mouse disease models although they are still not available at present. A major focus in the book will be to show what we can or cannot learn from mouse disease models and to also show the critical contributions of mouse models in therapeutic drug development.

our neighbors and

connected to its

Trade is the
lifeblood of [the]
State of Texas.
Last year in Texas,
almost 1 million
jobs were supported by some form of trade. Texas has been the top exporting State in the United States

for 14 consecutive years. The overwhelming
majority of Texas
exporters are not
big corporations,
but 93 percent of the Texas exporters
are small and
medium-size
businesses. In my district of Houston,
over half of the economy depends on trade. Houston has one of the largest ports in the world and is the oil and gas capital of the world. Mexico is Texas' number-one
exporting partner.
Over 10,000 trucks
a day pass the Texas-Mexico
border, all involved in trade. Texas is just one of the many States that rely on

NAFTA to fuel the economy. Study after study have shown that increased trade leads to increased jobs for all Americans. More jobs mean more wealth for Americans. NAFTA supports 14 million jobs in the United States, and, thanks to NAFTA, trade between the U.S., Mexico, and Canada has tripled. Nearly every industry is affected in one way or another by NAFTA. The U.S. economy relies on NAFTA.
