Services Marketing Management builds on the success of the previous editions, formally entitled 'The Management and Marketing of Services', to provide an easily digestible approach to the service industry with a specific focus on the management and marketing elements. This new edition has been thoroughly revamped to include pedagogical features such as exercises and mini cases throughout the text to consolidate learning and make it more student friendly. New content has been incorporated to bring the subject matter thoroughly up to date, for example featuring more on the Internet, the inclusion of material on call centres in respect of service delivery and service encounter; additional material on customer relationship management (CRM); consideration of frontline employees and internal marketing; and a discussion of revenue management issues in managing demand and capacity. Particularly suitable for students on marketing, business and hospitality courses who require a good grounding in the principles of services marketing, the practical implications are shown clearly and effectively demonstrate how the principles are applied in the real world. A web based lecturer resource accompanies the text.

This book is a guide for designers in industrial design, as well as in other areas such as architecture, interior design and visual communication in the area of digital media. It is also suitable for service bidders, as they also need to understand how to get the quality of care required, with the aid of a designer who will be mindful on the intangible aspects of service. As with other design areas, service design often gives priority to studying prior to the application of the concept of innovation or service enhancement. This is especially important since knowing the needs of the customers is the cornerstone of every discipline of design. It is desirable for a designer to review the needs of customers and service markets before considering the planning process. Service design is an element that has been implemented ever since a long time ago, but it is unlikely that its application can be done quickly, as there are combinations of different fields that need to contribute ideas and skills to service delivery. Service design used to be a term that does not exist, as service providers only discussed the concepts of 'to be built', 'to be created', 'to be launched' and so on when service was to be introduced. Thus, this book aims to bring back service design to the limelight, so as to not only educate designers, but also to remind service providers that it is also, and always will be, an important part of service Services Marketing Management John Wiley & Sons

Services Marketing Interactive Approach Springer Science & Business Media Business to business markets are considerably more challenging than consumer markets and as such demand a more specific skillset from marketers. Buyers, with a responsibility to their company and specialist product knowledge, are more demanding than the average consumer. Given that the products themselves may be highly complex, this often requires a sophisticated buyer to understand them. Increasingly, B2B relationships are conducted within a global context. However all textbooks are region-specific despite this growing move towards global business relationships – except this one. This textbook takes a global viewpoint, with the help of an international author team and cases from across the globe. Other unique features of this insightful study include: placement of B2B in a strategic marketing setting; full discussion of strategy in a global setting including hypercompetition; full chapter on ethics and CSR early in the text; and detailed review of global B2B services marketing, trade shows, and market research. This new edition has been fully revised and updated with a full set of brand new case studies and features expanded sections on digital issues, CRM, and social media as well as personal selling. More selective, shorter, and easier to read than other B2B textbooks, this is ideal for introduction to B2B and shorter courses.
