"Fit" is always in style! When you have curves all over instead of in the right places, you probably spend an entire hour figuring out what to wear. You have so many things to consider, like covering your thickening tummy, hiding those flabby arms or finding the right shade of gray to make you look thinner.

Imagine if you were 2 sizes smaller. Imagine if you can maintain that weight too. Then you'd have fewer wardrobe fluctuations (yes dear, fad diets won't get you anywhere). So you'd get to keep wearing classic pieces for a longer period of time. Now I'm not saying you should be waif-like or reed-thin, OK?

Being fit and healthy is having the right weight recommended for your height and age and having the energy to do the activities you enjoy. Besides, fitness will never be out of fashion!
