Order Yours Now! Concise Crossword Dictionary Away from rising waters and into the stacks, Sound/Chest wades into forgotten technologies and sometimes dwelled-upon flashes of memory. The card catalog, once filled with the information necessary to understand the library's workings more directly, is now empty and waiting to be discarded like thoughts that only roll to the front of our minds when something ephemeral reminds us of them again, prolonging their existence. The bell of the filmstrip player, now itself a relic in our forward progress, rings and signals its operator to move the narrative forward, one frame at a time. The language of filmstrip projection, existing now only in the memories of those who sat through countless numbers of them in grade school, weaves its way throughout the book, infiltrating the conversational, though often "jittery," tone of the poems. Where these two ephemeral items, once hallmarks of our search for information, combine is in the mind. Free of these tangible data stores, one wanders through, reminded of the people, places, and concepts which seemed short-lived upon their creation but continue to exist, if only in memories which were displaced but reemerge as the flood waters continue to work their way in. Nothing is ever far from the surface: relationships, politics, memories of car crashes, or even the vacations of others. The information collected by the mind, when not required to do so, is staggering when that information reengages us, asks us to be present in that memory while removing us from our present. "These poems keep babbling," writes Johannes Goransson, "until they've told us just about everything we did and did not want to know about ourselves." This is not to say that the poems of Sound/Chest having anything to confess but instead are a regurgitation in a moment of crisis, a materialization of buried, though never erased, memories. What the waters bring up with them from the bottom of the lake or river or ocean, the mind excavates from its depths and places before the reader. Whatever was vast and unknowable begins to map itself in these poems. Memories persist just as the oncoming catastrophe persists, soon to overtake all efforts to prepare for it. Memories, however, cannot be prepared for: where they emerge from cannot be sandbagged against, no levy can be built, and there is no higher ground to clamber. As the memories rush in, the wandering continues, from stack to stack and through each drawer, hoping to understand but avoid the inevitable destruction of materials and, ultimately, of memories collected throughout a lifetime experiences. These experiences are not the poignant moments of a life lived but rather the ephemera, the moments taken for granted that never required drawer space in the mind. The words are "made 'surplus'" in Sound/Chest, signaling language which is at times absurd, at other times "sublime," to use Goransson's words. The flood is indeed a destitute time and only direction to look for salvation seems inward, hoping to find refuge in the mind and in the physical space of the library. Though the drawers may be empty, the card catalog's labels are intact, but there is no inherent or immediately identifiable relationship between the words and numbers on these drawers. This book hopes to create that relationship, to find the connection between these words - or maybe all words - and thus between the memories which emerge from the recesses of the mind and "the barely off-stage catastrophe," as Rae Armantrout refers to it, in the present. Ultimately, Sound/Chest is about holding on in a moment where everything is about to be swept out from underneath.

A disgruntled British veterinary technician has access to a large repository of animal diseases at Britain's main veterinary laboratory. To exact revenge for his mistreatment, he steals samples of highly infectious agents for animal diseases and sells them to al Qaeda. Ayman al Zawahiri, the head of al Qaeda, decides to use the agents to mount a bioterrorism attack on the US. He first does a trial run with the causative agent for mad cow disease to check whether it would work. The agent is sprinkled on restaurant food and causes four cases of a horrific disease, Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease (CJD) which is also caused by the mad cow disease agent. Al Zawahiri then decides to use all the infectious material he bought to attack US farm animal production. Winston Sage, a retired epidemiologist who had previously helped the FBI interdict a terrorist attempt to poison US food supplies, is invited to help investigate the four cases of CJD. While the investigation

He is invited to a meeting with the US President and recommends a complete overhaul of intelligence activities, with which the President agrees..

Louise and the Laundrette Lady

Allan Krosch has led an interesting life, and collected colourful stories of people, places, historical events and memorable facts that he shares with ease in conversation and in the pages of this book. Now in retirement from his career as a civil engineer, he gives us access to some of the people he met, the changes he has witnessed in his life and work, and the wisdom he has gathered as an observer and a leader of people. In 'Little Things That Stick in the Mind - Some Stories from my Life Experiences', we read about his early life on a small-crop farm in a part of Brisbane that was reclaimed to build the Brisbane airport. We are also present at family and social events, overseas work travel, and we witness some of the mischief he instigated, as well as the near-misses he luckily avoided. Allan spent his career at the Department of Main Roads (later Transport and Main Roads) working, as he likes to say, 'For the good of the people of Queensland!' In addition to his Engineering qualifications, Allan has degrees in Economics and in Business Administration. Apart from family, and especially grandchildren, Allan's interests include managing family investments, playing golf, and singing in a choir. His primary motivator is solving challenges. These include cryptic crosswords, sudoku puzzles and home maintenance issues. The latter do arise from time to time for someone who has lived for 45 years (with his wife of now 51 years) in the same house - which was built in 1910. But that is another story.
