What's that Sound? Animal Sounds Every child quickly learns to associate sounds with things they are familiar with as they start to learn language. A two-year-old may frequently ask "What's that Sound?" when they hear something they do not recognize. They are also excited about learning to mimic the sounds of things they are familiar with. Repetition and mimicking is an important part of learning language. A child copies the sound a kitten makes, or the sound of a dog. Knowing how beneficial this process is for toddlers is the impetus for writing this book. The author's 23 month old grandson, asked "What's that sound?" so many times every day, a grandmother did what a grandmother does. She wrote and illustrated "What's that Sound? Animal Sounds" and "What's that Sound? Transportation Sounds" in response to his love for learning sounds. He quickly learned to make the sounds that correspond to various animals and transportation and construction equipment. His environment was filled with new sounds. His grandmother moved to a condo on a busy street and next door to his home a house was demolished and a new house was under construction. He, like most children at that stage of learning language, enjoyed learning the names the thing making the sound. Many times he could not see what was making the noise. For this reason a book supplies an opportunity to learn the vocabulary and phonetic expressions to match.

This book explores the significance of silence within and beyond pedagogical contexts. Silence is a complex and multidimensional phenomenon for everyday life: since schools mirror society, it is also significant in education. While silence can be experienced in a multitude of different ways, the author reflects on whether silence itself can bear a message: is there an aspect of dialogue in silence, or is it a language all of its own? This book examines a variety of silences essential for education, examining such topics as silence and aspects of power, silent students, and the relationship between listening and silence. Drawing on a range of empirical data, the author elucidates the significance of silence in pedagogical contexts.

Sandra Chevrier is an illustrator, painter and street artist living and working in Montreal, Canada. By mixing watercolour paintings and trompe l'oeil comic book collage she crafts beautiful, hyper-realistic mixed-media portraits. Sandra, who calls herself a "gaze collector," creates these hyperrealistic paintings of women in a manner that allows for reinterpretation and recontextualization of the superhero mask. By covering these images with a collage of comic book prints, using scenes from Superman and Batman to conceal the faces of these idealized women, Chevrier discovers new "fragile heroes," promoting the idea that vulnerability often underlies heroism. Titled "Cages," these mixed-media works encourage viewers to consider how the modern woman--like these superheroes--might also be surrounded by expectations of effortless perfection.
