Contemporary Singapore is simultaneously a small postcolonial multicultural nation state and a cosmopolitan global city. To manage fundamental contradictions, the state takes the lead in authoring the national narrative. This is partly an internal process of nation building, but it is also achieved through more commercially motivated and outward facing efforts at nation and city branding. Both sets of processes contribute to Singapore's capacity to influence foreign affairs, if only for national self-preservation. For a small state with resource limitations, this is mainly through the exercise of smart power, or the ability to strategically combine soft and hard power resources.

Henry St George Caulfeild (1851 – 1943) wrote this autobiography towards the end of his life and called it percipiently, 'A Speck in the Cosmos'. Reading 'A Speck in the Cosmos' reveals a fascinating insight into Henry Caulfeild's life in colonial Ceylon (as Sri Lanka was known), when coffee was grown and where he worked as a plantation manager. When coffee failed there, Henry then moved to Queensland during Australia's era of imported labour from the South Sea Islands for the rapidly developing sugar plantations around Bundaberg, a topic which subsequently became controversial. Written in the somewhat constrained language of the time, this autobiography nevertheless remains a primary historical resource of a lifestyle of that era and puts a first-hand and very personal touch to British and Australian enterprises of the time. Although the autobiography was never formally published at the time, a portion of 'A Speck in the Cosmos' was serialised in a pre-World War II Australian magazine called 'The Steering Wheel and Society & Home'. Sisters Colleen Watts and Louise Brodie, Henry's great grandchildren, have carefully compiled this book, using the previously published pages and a selection of family and historical photographs. Also included is a section of the family tree to give context to the autobiography and the family members mentioned. Caulfeild's Boer War Compendium (an extraordinary amount of material relating to the Boer War and referred to in this autobiography) is housed by the State Library of Queensland, Australia in the John Oxley Library in Brisbane.
