The Texas Model for Comprehensive School Counseling Programs is a resource to develop effective and high quality comprehensive school counseling programs that align with Texas statutes and rules governing the work of school counselors. It outlines a process for tailoring school counseling programs to meet the varying needs of students across an array of school districts through implementation of the four components of school counseling programs, Guidance Curriculum, Responsive Services, Individual Planning, and System Support. With this resource, a school counselor will learn to use campus-specific data to identify the unique needs of a campus and design a comprehensive school counseling program to meet those needs. Recognizing the important roles of the entire educational community, the Texas Model for Comprehensive School Counseling Programs provides examples of how parents, teachers, administrators, principals and school counselors can best contribute to implementation of each of the four components of comprehensive school counseling programs. It provides a developmental framework for a school counseling program curriculum that includes activities at each grade level to enhance students' educational, career, personal and social development.

The driving task and driving environment have become increasingly more complex with each passing year. Methods used to evaluate driver education programs have grown proportionally. The four objectives for this investigation were as follows: 1. To determine if students who were taught in a "30 and 6" or a simulator program had better driving records than students without driver education. 2. To ascertain relative cost per student for providing these programs in various size schools under different instructional conditions. 3. To establish which type program produced students with better driving records, i.e., fewer convictions and accidents and less severe accidents. 4. To find which type program developed better results in a driving record for the amount of revenue expended. Five null hypotheses were tested in the study. The findings were as follows: 1. Using conviction criterion, students of "30 and 6" programs had no better driving records than students without driver education. But using accident criterion, students of "30 and 6" had significantly greater accident involvement than their matched members. In a subset analysis in which chronological age was controlled, the findings echoed those of the null hypothesis. However in a subset analysis in which driving experience was controlled, the findings contradicted those of the null hypothesis. 2. Using conviction criterion, students of simulator training were significantly better drivers than those without driver education. But using accident criterion, students of simulator training had no better driving records than their matched members. 3. Using conviction, accident, and severity of accident criteria, simulator training produced significantly better drivers than "30 and 6" driver education. ...
