The Bishop's Man is a novel by Canadian

writer Linden MacIntyre, published in August 2009. The story follows a Catholic priest
named Duncan MacAskill who became so successful
at resolving potential
church scandals
quickly and quietly
that he had to accept a position at a remote parish on Cape

Breton Island, Nova Scotia to give himself a low profile.

MacIntyre, a native of Cape Breton, released the novel amidst the ongoing sexual abuse scandal in Antigonish diocese in Nova Scotia. The book was aw

To read The Bishops Man, by Linden

MacIntyre, is to come to an understanding
about nuance,
patience and the sometimes ambiguity of knowledge. The novel is set in the late 1990s of Cape Breton, at a time
when the Catholic

Church is under siege both from within and without, and when Canadas fisheries
are collapsing.
