The Bohemian is a painting by William-Adolphe Bouguereau completed in 1890. It depicts a barefooted young woman sitting on a concrete bench on the south bank of the Seine across from Notre Dame de Paris resting a violin in her lap. Her right arm is resting on her thigh while the palm of her left hand is pressed down on her left knee so that she does not lean on the violin.

Review: The Bohemians by Dan Franck | Education | The Guardian The bohemian style gave birth to more modern counter-culture styles. Beatniks, with their black turtle necks and striped shirts, took on a more austere tone of the dress. A hippie style introduced a note of childhood into the mix by incorporating cowboy and Indian styles as well as short, girlish skirts.
