This little book is an invitation, through the mode of a bardic-contemplative tool, to slow down each day, to meditate on some feature of the vast Celtic spiritual traditions, giving the reader the unmistakable sense that the Celtic spirit is not quarantined to some ancient, inaccessible past, but rather a living stream of inspiration that survives today. A Celtic meditation that connects you with the earth--and ... Celtic Spirit Meditations The first VisionJourney takes you to Glastonbury long ago, when it was the ancient Isle of Avalon. You will enter the original gardens of the Chalice Well and meet an inner guide in the apple grove where the Red Spring flows.

Each meditation begins with a quote from some source of Celtic mythology or scholarship, or writing inspired by Celtic influences which reflects the theme for the day. The short meditation follows, exploring the theme more carefully. Finally, an "invitation" or instruction of some kind concludes the reading.
