The Red and the Green is a novel by Iris Murdoch. Published in 1965, it was her ninth novel. It is set in Dublin during the week leading up to the Easter Rising of 1916, and is her only historical novel. Its characters are members of a complexly inter-related Anglo-Irish family who differ in their religious affiliations and in their views on the relations between England and Ireland. The novel combines a thoroughly researched account of the events leading up to the Easter Rising with a complicat

Patients can spend time in hospital that doesn't contribute towards their discharge and we believe that by working together, we can reduce the number of 'red days' in favour of value-adding 'green days'. We recently celebrated NHS providers who have reduced wasted time in patient journeys.

There is hope as species move from red to amber and amber to green. Mark says, "We've seen bitterns and nightjars move from red list to the amber list. Bitterns are a wonderful story because they were almost extinct from the UK, with less than a dozen males 20 years ago, but because of our conservation action it's now thriving.
