Richardson writes: " The Theology of Hope was actually a non-Marxist, Christian answer to Marxists. " 2 Richardson argues it is because many fail to understand the political background Moltmann writes within that they mistake him as a Marxist. He certainly appreciates elements of Marx, especially through his appreciation of Ernst Bloch; he is not, however, properly understood as writing a Marxist theology, but a Christian alternative to Marx.

Creative dialogue with Moltmann by evangelicals in fact has occurred by theologians like Stanley Grenz and John Franke (Beyond Foundationalism: Shaping Theology in a Postmodern Context, 2001), and in biblical studies with, for example, Richard Bauckham (e.g., with Trevor Hart, Hope against Hope: Christian Eschatology at the Turn of the ...
