¿ Qu é pas ó el 4 de septiembre de 2005? El 4 de septiembre de 2005, cuando se celebraba el Día del Padre, el coche que conducía a Robert Farquharson, un limpiador de cristales con una vida ordinaria, se salió de la carretera y se hundió en una balsa con sus tres hijos dentro. Él logró alcanzar la orilla y salvarse; sus hijos, de diez, siete y dos años, no lo consiguieron. El proceso judicial trató de determinar si, como creía a la conmocionada sociedad australiana, Farquharson lo había hecho como venganza contra su mujer, de quien se había separado poco antes, o si, como defendía el propio Farquharson, todo había sido resultado de un trágico accidente, provocado por un desmayo al volante. Este caso real se convirtió en una obsesión para la escritora Helen Garner, lo contó tras acudir diariamente a los tribunales.

Descubre las crónicas del juicio de un padre acusado de asesinato. EXTRACTO Las ruedas dejan distintos rastros al pasar por una superficie. La marca de derrape se produce cuando las cuatro ruedas se bloquean y se arrastran por el suelo debido al impulso del vehículo. La marca de bandazo ocurre normalmente cuando un vehículo circula demasiado rápido y las ruedas delanteras y las traseras no marchan alineadas, lo que produce cuatro huellas en lugar de dos. Y la impronta es simplemente la impresión que deja una rueda que gira libremente: el molde en relieve de la huella sobre la grava o la tierra, o la hierba aplastada en la dirección del movimiento del vehículo. El coche de Farquharson había dejado improntas en el terreno que había entre la carretera y la balsa. Este hecho indiscutible era algo a lo que tanto nosotras como el jurado, por desgracia, debimos aferrarnos durante el despiadado interrogatorio de Morrissey a los policías. SOBRE EL AUTOR Hasta la fecha, solo se había publicado un libro de Helen Garner en España: La habitación de invitados (Salamandra, 2012). En él, la protagonista, llamada también Helen, acoge en su casa a una vieja amiga enferma de cáncer que viaja a Melbourne para seguir una terapia alternativa. Helen, que no tiene ninguna confianza en el tratamiento, se debate entre apoyar a su amiga a decirle lo que de verdad piensa.

"Johnny Sung and David Ashton are two of the leading scholars in the area of skills. This book combines challenging theories with cutting edge research in a way that should bring skills to life for students. I strongly recommend it for anyone researching or studying in this area." - Irena Grugulis, Leeds University Business School "A much needed contribution to the complex debate of how skills can best be utilised to enhance company performance, with particular emphasis on an innovative sectoral approach. It is a model of clarity in its presentation of the authors' conceptual models using a historical narrative as well as comparative case studies in both the UK and Singapore." - Bert Clough, Leeds University Business School Public skills policy in most market economies in the last forty years made one repeated error, time and again. We seem to be unable to learn from those mistakes. Consistently, public policies view a wide range of economic and social issues e.g. low productivity, low-skilled jobs, low wage, inequality and in-work poverty as the consequence of skills deficits and a lack of qualifications held by individual workers. Whilst misdiagnosing the source of the problems and failing to deliver any effective change, public skills policies continue with a policy prescription of 'more skills' and 'more degrees'. If we have not solved the problems with this decade-old approach, why should the same medicine work this time? This book examines the role of public skills policy from a completely different perspective. It starts by challenging the lack of a systematic analysis of the link between skills utilisation and business strategy, and provides a new model for fresh thinking. The book extends this theoretical analysis to examine the implications for the sectoral approach to skills development as a more effective form of public skills policy. David N. Ashton is Emeritus Professor at the University of Leicester and Honorary Professor at Cardiff University. Johnny Sung is at The Institute for Adult Learning, Singapore Workforce Development Agency, Singapore.

The Swiss National Forest Inventory (NFI) is a forest survey on national level which started in 1982 and has already reached its 5th survey cycle (NFI5). It can be characterized as a multisource and multipurpose inventory where information is mainly collected from terrestrial field surveys using permanent sample plots. In addition, data from aerial photography, GIS and forest service questionnaires are also included. The NFI's main objective is to provide statistically reliable and sound figures to stakeholders such as politicians, researchers, ecologists, forest service, timber industry, national and international organizations as well as to international projects such as the Forest Resources Assessment of the United Nations. For Switzerland, NFI results are typically reported on national and regional level. State of the art methods are applied in all fields of data collection which have been proven to be of international interest and have even served as a basis for other European NFIs. The presented methods are applicable to any sample based forest inventory around the globe. In 2001 the Swiss NFI published its methods for the first time. Since then, many methodological changes and improvements have been introduced. This book describes the complete set of methods and revisions since NFI2. It covers various topics ranging from inventory design and statistics to remote sensing, field survey methods and modelling. It also describes data quality concepts and the software framework used for data storage, statistical analysis and result presentation. Toyota Hiace Repair Manual for Chassis & Body Strategic Book Publishing & Rights Agency Set against the backdrop of a windswept valley, rolling hillsides, and several disjointed suburban communities, The New Bridge represents an amazing novel of intrigue, suspense, and compelling drama. A hard-working family oriented cast that was never able to completely think through periods of challenge and change, desperately tries to put their lives back on track. But their attempt at grappling with the heralding changes confronting them ends in spectacular failure. It isn't surprising after years of effort that they fall back to their old routine of crime and violence. There's only one problem: Crime doesn't pay.

The Origin of Competitive Strength Springer Science & Business Media

When the war ended on August 15, 1945, I was a naval engineering cadet at the Kure Navy Yard near Hiroshima, Japan. A week later, I was demobilized and returned to my home in Tokyo, fortunate not to find it ravaged by firebombing. At the beginning of September, a large contingent of the American occupation forces led by General Douglas MacArthur moved its base from Yokohama to Tokyo. Near my home I watched a procession of American military motor vehicles snaking along Highway 1. This truly awe-inspiring cavalcade included jeeps, two-and-a-half-ton trucks, and enormous trailers mounted with tanks and artillery. At the time, I was a 21-year-old student in the Machinery Section of Engineering at the Tokyo Imperial University. Watching that magnificent parade of military vehicles, I was more than impressed by the gap in industrial strength between Japan and the U. S. That realization led me to devote my whole life to the development of the Japanese auto industry. I wrote a small article concerning this incident in Nikkei Sangyo Shimbun (one of the leading business newspapers in Japan) on May 2, 1983. The English translation of this story was carried in the July 3, 1983 edition of the Topeka Capital-Journal and the September 13, 1983 issue of the Asian Wall Street Journal. The Topeka Capital-Journal headline read, "MacArthur's Jeeps Were the Toyota Catalyst."
