Author of Planet Funny Ken Jennings

" reveals the truth behind all those things you tell your children " (Parade) in this entertaining and useful New York Times bestseller " armed with case histories, scientific finds, and experiments on himself and his own children " (Los Angeles Times). Is any of it true? If so, how true? Ken Jennings wants to find out if parents always know best. Yes, all those years you were told not to sit too close to the television or swallow your gum or crack your knuckles are called into question by our country ' s leading trivia guru. Jennings separates myth from fact to debunk a wide variety of parental edicts: no swimming after meals, sit up straight, don ' t talk to strangers, and so on. Armed with medical case histories, scientific findings, and even the occasional experiment on himself (or his kids), Jennings exposes countless examples of parental wisdom run amok. Whether you ' re a parent plagued by needless concern or a kid (of any age) looking to say, " I told you so, " this is the anti – helicopter parenting book you ' ve been waiting for.

Project Learning Tree AuthorHouse

The #1 New York Times bestseller from " one of America ' s most hilarious and provocative writers . . . a volatile brew of one-liners and vitriol " (Time). Renowned for his cranky conservative humor, P. J. O ' Rourke runs hilariously amok in this book, tackling the death of communism; his frustration with sanctimonious liberals; and Saddam Hussein in a series of classic dispatches from his coverage of the 1991 Gulf War. On Kuwait City after the war, he comments, " It looked like all the worst rock bands in the world had stayed there at the same time. " On Saddam Hussein, O ' Rourke muses: " He ' s got chemical weapons filled with . . . with . . . chemicals. Maybe he ' s got The Bomb. And missiles that can reach Riyadh, Tel Aviv, Spokane. Stock up on nonperishable foodstuffs. Grab those Diet Coke cans you were supposed to take to the recycling center and fill them with home heating oil. Bury the Hummel figurines in the yard. We ' re all going to die. Details at eleven. " And on the plague of celebrity culture, he notes: " You can ' t shame or humiliate modern celebrities. What used to be called shame and humiliation is now called publicity. " Mordant and utterly irreverent, this is a modern classic from one of our great political satirists, described by Christopher Buckley as being " like S. J. Perelman on acid. " " Mocking on the surface but serious beneath . . . When it comes to scouting the world for world-class absurdities, O ' Rourke is the right man for the job. " —Los Angeles Times Book Review " The funniest writer in America. " —The Wall Street Journal The Typewriter Revolution: A Typist's Companion for the 21st Century C&T Publishing Inc

You can never have enough space. And if you can't, just think of your kids--all the time they have to spend in tight spaces--like cars, planes, trains, the doctor's office, the grocery store, being sick or housebound, waiting in line. Kids need room to move around, but there are many times when they just plain can't have it. While raising two exuberant boys, teaching preschool, leading Cub Scouts, and running a birthday party business, Carol Stock Kranowitz came up with savvy, creative ways to keep kids content in tight spaces. In 101 Activities for Kids in Tight Spaces, her activity ideas combine old standbys with new ones born of desperation and cramped quarters. They follow a philosophy that helps kids develop their different skills and abilities while entertaining themselves and interacting. You'll find great projects for every imaginable small space parents and children encounter: Fun Food for Tiny Kitchens: Ants on a Log, Footprints in the Snow, and Aiken Drum Faces In the Urban Community: Windowsill Garden, Bug Jar, and Corn-on-the-Sponge When the Walls Seem to Be Closing In: Pillow Crashing, People Sandwich, and Teeter-Totter When what you've got is a small space and a restless child, what you need are 101 ingenious solutions--right away. Here they are--easy to implement, creative fun for the three to seven-year-old--activities that can turn tough moments into teachable, terrific ones.

Hands within the Battle: My Mississippi History By: Minnie P. Stewart After experiencing and observing many years of visible and invisible racism, Minnie P. Stewart knew she needed to speak the truth. She and her family, like so many others, had been privately holding onto their family history. This memoir is her retelling and reflection on her and her family as they faced racism and oppression and the help they received from others as they themselves strived to serve. Stewart wrote Hands within the Battle to preserve her family history. It will draw readers in as they learn the secrets of the smiles and the songs on the lips of Black Americans as they battle life ' s stumbling blocks. It is a moving witness to the power of love and service to sustain a family through hardship.

The Best of Sewing Machine Fun For Kids Harper Collins

In today's digital age, children are typing on a keyboard or screen more than they physically write, so is it still important to teach handwriting? There are many reasons to have your child begin handwriting as early as possible and continue practicing regularly. Proper penmanship can help improve hand-eye coordination and other important motor skills. Our brains engage differently when we write by hand instead of typing on a keyboard or touchscreen. Studies have shown that writing can improve memory; and that students tend to retain information better when taking notes with handwriting instead of typing. Handwriting skills can help children further develop skills such as reading and spelling. We also need handwriting skills to do many tasks later in life like writing out greeting cards, emails, or resumes for employment, filling in forms, and signing important documents. Gripping a pencil or other writing tool will strengthen the muscles in the hand and fingers, while forming the lines can improve control over the small stabilizing muscles to create a stronger bond between the brain and the hands. Studies show that children that regularly practice handwriting, whether it be print, cursive, or calligraphy, tend to show higher brain activity in the section linked to better memory! Perfect for preschoolers, toddlers, or students of any age. Teens and adults can also benefit by practicing cursive, calligraphy, or even just developing better penmanship skills overall. With 120 usable pages, kids can get plenty of much-needed repetitive practice. With the blank nature of the handwriting pages, kids can practice anything they would like, such as letters, numbers, shapes, line tracing, or cutting, and anything else your imagination can come up with! Makes a great, affordable tool for both homeschooling parents, and elementary or middle school classroom teachers. What you'll get: 120 LARGE 8.5"x11" size pages. 11 handwriting rows on each page, giving you the most bang for your buck. A premium designed cover that makes children excited to write daily. Affordable handwriting practice
