Tactically oriented shooters look for a firearm with proven Durability, Reliability and Accuracy. For over 30 years. The Beretta M9 has been the standard sidearm of the US Military for 30 years and the Beretta

M9-22 builds on that tradition.

Given its design, the Umarex Beretta 92 FS is never going to be as a functional replica as a blowback design. The rear part of the slide doesn ' t move, there is no drop-out magazine, there is virtually no felt recoil when shooting and only the manual safety operates in the same way as it does on the original (though it doesn ' t include a de-cocking function).

M9_22LR - Beretta

The G models (designed for the French " Gendarmerie Nationale ") feature a manual decocking lever only instead of the safety-decocking lever of the 92 FS. When the decocking lever is released, it automatically returns to the ready to fire position. There is no manual safety (Fig. 2).
