My Velvet drive manual says to check it at operating temperature (190 degrees) to get the proper level. The manual goes on to say that once you have the proper level warm, you should let the trannies cool overnight then mark the dipstick at the cool-level so you can check it warm or cool in the future.

My boat has model 10-18-004 Velvet Drive with 1:52:1 ratio. I went down into the engine compartment and manually moved the shifter lever to see if possible the cable was not totally engaging reverse. When I shifted the trans into reverse, I am not getting any kind of sound at all. Fluids are all good and it was fine when I got hauled last fall.
