The main difference here is that if you manually upgrade your HTC DROID ERIS, it is a FULL ROM FIRMWARE FLASH, not an in-line update, which will remove all your settings and programs, and returning the phone to a factory state. After of which you will have to reactivate your phone (*228) and reinstall your program and settings.

Currently there are no plans to release 2.1 for the HTC Droid Eris. The 2.1 update you may have heard of is only available for the Motorola Droid. It is possible this may occur for the Eris in the future, but we cannot provide any timeframes or guarantees.

Joseph, I understand your concerns regarding the 2.1 update. Sincerely, {edited for privacy}

The HTC Droid (as of now) does not have turn by turn navigation. However, it is rumored that it will get the 2.1 update sometime in the first quarter of next year and will have the navigation at that time. I have the Moto Droid and love it, but alot of people swear by their HTC. My opinions on comparing the two phones: HTC Droid (Eris):
