Resources for the Future Public-Private Partnership (PPP) has been a relatively successful model for infrastructure development in India. However, investment of private capital, especially foreign investment, is far from satisfactory keeping in mind the estimated investments of the Government under the XIth and XIIth plans. Several issues have been identified which include, evolving a robust legislative framework and a well-balanced concession agreement. A major area of concern at the stage of contract management is the setting up of an efficient and credible dispute resolution mechanism which would ensure settlement of disputes in a time-bound manner. Apart from litigation, several alternative modes are being followed in India like amicable settlement, mediation, arbitration and expert adjudication. This article analyses the various practices of dispute resolution mandated in central and state legislations, policy documents and industry practices. In an attempt to suggest the most viable approach to dispute resolution in core infrastructure sectors, it will also establish the inter-relationship between private investment and dispute resolution mechanisms.

Partnership for the Amicable Resolution of Conflict (SPARC) Mediation Program Cognella Academic Publishing While the TPP is very controversial and politicized, and while it may never be passed by Congress, it is incumbent on lawyers and law professors to apply their objective assessment to the TPP provisions that are most closely related to their field: dispute resolution processes. This will allow for a more balanced and mature debate regarding the future of the TPP as it proceeds through the congressional process. This study looks at the salient aspects of Chapter 28 (Dispute Settlement) and Chapter 9 (Investment). The Dispute Settlement Procedures outlined in Chapter 28 are intended to resolve trade disputes between states; these are separate from the Investor-

State Dispute Settlement (ISDS) mechanism provided in Chapter 9, which focuses on disputes between private parties and governments over investment issues. From a legal and foreign policy perspective, the TPP dispute resolution system is a well-thought-out approach to global trade and investment litigation for the ever-growing, interconnected ecosystem of world trade. It builds upon prior experience and updates prior practice, especially in terms of transparency. It sets the terms for future trade relations. This is good for U.S. national interests, the global economic system and both old and new players in this system. impressive enough. Along with the prevalence of COVID-19 and the deepening of economic globalization, work and production in China were resumed in an orderly manner, bringing positive economic growth against the trend. In this context, commercial dispute resolutions in China were faced with new challenges, and endured new reforms while embracing new developments. The promulgation of new laws and regulations in 2020, including the Civil Code of the People ' s

Republic of China and the Supplementary Arrangements on Mutual Implementation of Arbitral Awards in Mainland China and Hong Kong Special Administrative Region, has elevated the arbitration system to a higher level. Arbitration institutions such as the Beijing Arbitration Commission/Beijing International Arbitration Center (hereinafter referred to as “BAC/BIAC”) carried out anti-pandemic measures in a timely manner to ensure the well-functioning of the arbitration procedures.	Meanwhile, China’s judicial supervision on arbitration and arbitration disclosure have undergone impressive developments. In 2020, the procedural standards of commercial mediation were further optimized, and commercial mediation institutions continued to expand and grow, while the number of mediation cases increased steadily. The “one-stop” diversified dispute resolution system was fully advanced, and the systems of litigation-mediation and arbitration-mediation have been constantly	improved. Online mediation mechanism was rapidly developed in response to the new norms of pandemic prevention and control. Sino-foreign joint mediation mechanism has been gradually established, and international commercial mediation rules and systems are continuously refined. While rolling out countermeasures in full scale to mitigate impacts of pandemic, China achieved some eye-catching accomplishments in terms of legal system development and dispute resolution resolution of investment disputes. In terms of international trade, multiple statutes and regulatory rules were enacted in order to safeguard national security and to protect the interests of Chinese enterprises. Judicial authorities took the lead in exploring and identifying new transaction modes under the premise of adhering to international trade rules. In terms of intellectual property, the Patent Law and the Copyright Law were amended, and various judicial interpretations and guidelines were released intensively. Dispute resolution methods become more diversified, and arbitration and mediation played more important roles. In the area of civil aviation, several rules and regulations were formulated or amended. Phenomena restraining the development of the aviation industry occurred from time to time in 2020, including restrictions against traffic rights, export controls, and intellectual property rights discrimination. In the film and television entertainment industry, risks and opportunities existed side by side. The industry witnessed an increase of disputes over the performance of film and television contracts, disputes over the emerging live streaming business, and disputes over the types of works defined in copyright law. In the field of sports, the sanction mechanisms against doping violations were improved, and the protection for intellectual property rights of sports-related intangible assets were strengthened while the amount of sports-related disputes went up. To present an in-depth and systematic report on the 2020 practices and developments in the aforementioned fields, BAC/BIAC has called upon industry experts to contribute to the Annual Review and Preview of Commercial Dispute Resolution in China (2021) (“ 2021 Annual Review ”), and released it in both Chinese and English to facilitate a better understanding of the status quo of China ’ s commercial dispute resolutions among interested parties at home and abroad. The 2021 Annual Review is compiled based on the following principles: First, a focus on the state of the art. The 2021 Annual Review strives to showcase the latest developments in relevant industries and the leading trends in legal systems and judicial practices. It selected annual hot topics for in-depth analysis, aiming to deliver timely observations and cutting-edge contents while providing detailed information thereof. Second, a focus on the consistency and systematicness. By inheriting previous compilation rules, the 2021 Annual Review presents an annual overview of various industries, crucial laws and policies, typical cases, analyses of heated issues and prospects, such that the readers are able to grasp the practices and developments of key industries from a multi-angle, holistic perspective. Third, a focus on practicability. The 2021 Annual Review pays attention to the pragmatic value in order to help commercial entities improve their abilities of risk prevention and dispute resolution. The Editorial Committee is composed of seasoned professionals who deliver observations and opinions based on their rich experience on the industry ' s frontline, providing practical references for the readers. Fourth, a focus on international perspectives. The 2021 Annual Review is written in both Chinese and English, aiming to show the new developments in China ' s commercial dispute resolution to overseas readers, and to express the voice of China to the international community. Each report is written in both languages by the same team to ensure consistency and accuracy of contents.

The Handbook of Dispute Resolution

TarcherPerigee

This volume is an essential, cutting-edge reference for all practitioners, students, and teachers in the field of dispute resolution.

Each chapter was written specifically for this collection and has never before been published. The contributors--drawn from a wide range of academic disciplines--contains many of the most prominent names in dispute resolution today, including Frank E. A. Sander, Carrie Menkel-Meadow, Bruce Patton, Lawrence Susskind, Ethan Katsh, Deborah Kolb, and Max Bazerman. The Handbook of Dispute Resolution contains the most current thinking about dispute resolution. It synthesizes more than thirty years of research into cogent, practitioner-focused chapters that assume no previous background in the field. At the same time, the book offers path-breaking research and theory that will interest those who have been immersed in the study or practice of dispute resolution for years. The Handbook also offers insights on how to understand disputants. It explores how personality factors, emotions, concerns about identity, relationship dynamics, and perceptions contribute to the escalation of disputes. The volume also explains some of the lessons available from viewing disputes through the lens of gender and cultural differences.

Efficient Resolution of Partnership Disputes Environmental conflict resolution (ECR) is a process of negotiation that allows stakeholders in a dispute to reach a mutually satisfactory agreement on their own terms. The tools of ECR, such as facilitation, mediation, and conflict assessment, suggest that it fits well with other ideas for reforming environmental policy. First used in 1974, ECR has been an official part of policymaking since the mid-1990s. This is the first book to evaluate systematically the results of these efforts. The contributions to this book critically investigate the record and potential of ECR, drawing on perspectives from political science, public administration, regional planning, philosophy, psychology, anthropology, and law. Conflict Resolution

(Third Edition)
Our current models for ending conflict don't really work. They waste incredible amounts of time, money, and energy and take an enormous emotional toll on participants. The parties remain embittered, relationships are destroyed, and often the conflict just reappears later in a different form. In this second edition of his classic book, Stewart

Levine offers a revolutionary alternative approach that goes beyond compromise and capitulation to provide a satisfactory resolution for everyone involved. Marriages run amuck, neighbors at odds with one another, business deals gone sour, and the pain and anger caused by corporate downsizing are just a few of the conflicts he addresses. The new edition has been	thoroughly revised with new examples, new tools, new material about building trust and virtual collaboration, as well as a more global outlook. Levine rejects the adversarial legal model: "If both sides are unhappy, you probably have a good settlement." Resolution, he shows, provides relief and completeness for both sides. No one goes away unhappy. Effective	resolution stops anger and resentment cold, drastically cutting the emotional cost and allowing both sides to return to productive, satisfying, functional relationships. Getting to Resolution outlines the ten principles underlying this new approach—what Levine calls “resolutionary thinking. Levine provides a detailed seven-step process for using this new mindset to resolve conflicts in a way that fosters dignity and integrity, optimizes resources, and allows all concerns to be voiced, honored, and woven into the resolution. Levine's model has a thirty-five-year track record. It has been developed, implemented, tested, and proven in business, personal, and governmental contexts. Getting to Resolution will enable readers to shift from thinking about problems, fighting, and breakdowns to thinking about collaboration, engagement, learning, creativity, and the opportunity for creating enduring value. Primary Dispute Resolution Partnership Projects "Although providing for further integration with EU institutions, the Eastern Partnership does not offer Georgia what the country desires the most: security guarantees and avenues for the restoration of its territorial integrity. There are, however, possibilities for further EU involvement in these spheres, but only if Georgia delivers on democratic reforms. Georgia also needs to see signals from the EU that conflict resolution and security are not out of the picture in the longterm and that the EU leaves the door open for further engagement"--Publisher's description. Conflict Resolution Conflict Resolution: The Partnership Way presents readers with a proven paradigm for effective conflict resolution in all human systems called the Partnership Way. Within this model, individuals are encouraged to see those with whom they are experiencing conflict as partners and to identify conflict as an opportunity for personal and relational transformation. The Partnership Way features a strong theoretical foundation, presents a systemic approach to conflict resolution, and empowers individuals to lead more authentic lives. The book is divided into four parts. Part One provides an overview of the Partnership Way, its theoretical foundation, and the key components of the model. In Part Two, readers learn how to apply the model to resolve interpersonal conflicts concerning wants, needs, values, and beliefs. Part Three demonstrates how to resolve intractable conflicts that involve unmet needs related to unhealed development traumas. The final part of the text focuses on the application of the Partnership Way to resolving conflicts in schools, professions, communities, cultures, nation-states, and the history of the human race. Highly personal and experiential in nature, Conflict Resolution helps current and future practitioners in education, counseling, social work, psychology, and law to not only develop skillsets to guide clients through effective conflict resolution, but to successfully apply the skills to their own lives and relationships.
