A few of the early 4 row 5100's had individual blowers but most have the central one. Blower can drive off of tractor hydraulics if you have a closed center system. We did that with an Oliver 1755 and White 2-105. They also have a pto pump similar to the IH's. White's don't take near the power to operate though.

Any row cleaner that fits a JD maxemerge will work on a White faceplate, you will have to drill some new holes. Martin and Dawn have row cleaners for White. Chances are you will have wear in gauge wheel pivots so plan on fixing with RK products. A 5100 with new disks and tight gauge wheels is a very good planter.

I am looking at a White 5100 Planter. What are the pros and cons to this planter? I will use it for corn. Does it have any particular weaknesses I should look for or be aware of? It is a 4 row wide with dry fertilizer. I beleive it has the central air pump, not the individual electric air pumps. Thanks. Paul
