Could a portfolio career be for you?

| Students | The Guardian

Sometimes a portfolio career is the choice we make when we are presented with lots of other valid and exciting choices.

Sometimes it is the choice we shrug on like a well-worn cardigan because it's the only choice we have, and many of us have been working like this through university while we were studying.

Work Portfolio For Career Choices Answer

Consider a portfolio career A mix of part-time and freelance work could help you strike the balance you're after – the gig economy isn't just for grads. It's flexible and allows you to work for the clients that you want and have greater control over your working hours.

What is Portfolio Working - Telegraph Jobs Careers Advice

Essentially, having a portfolio career is about using the skills you have at your disposal to make a freelance living, and doing it in a way that's rewarding and provides you with variety. It doesn't have to mirror the things I detail above – somebody could have a portfolio career by doing a mix of freelance writing , selling crafts and baking cupcakes.
