"I'm actually not a bad chap," insists Raymond Gunt, but he's wrong. A freelance photographer several months behind on his rent, Ray is the "worst person ever" at the black heart of Coupland's 14th and most scabrously hilarious work of fiction. "Worst. Person. Ever." is an erupting Vesuvius of abuse and profanity, ...

He'd almost be sympathetic if he wasn't the worst person ever.

Comically satirical in his depiction of the blistering superficiality and inanity of modern pop culture, Coupland (Generation X, 1991) here wallows in the carnivalesque as he indulges in gross-out humor and his characters' bad behavior, but, unfortunately, it all comes off as misanthropic and unpleasant.

Worst. Person. Ever. by Douglas Coupland - Goodreads

In “Worst. Person. Ever.”

Coupland offers an excess-on-excess satire of what he may see as the worst culture ever — a judgment both expressed by and embodied in Raymond Gunt, its wholly dominant title character.

Worst. Person. Ever. - Wikipedia

Douglas Coupland is not a terribly careful writer, though in the more compassionate Generation X, published back in 1991, he coined some good terms, including "McJobs". One must assume his stance is still vaguely honourable and that he intends Worst. Person. Ever. to be some sort of critique of mass
