I owned a 78 Exciter 440 and at that time Yamaha claimed the horsepower to be 48. It was a light sled which came from the factory with a single carb and the oil injection was set very rich. If one turned down the oil, it would run quite a bit better with a little jetting change. It was very competitive in the market at that time.

The SX's shift RPM is raised to 7,700 from the base engine's 7,300 RPM. As with the Vmax, the Exciter SX has the windage plates on the secondary drive clutch. This reduces drag and slightly increases power to the track. The power on all Exciters should be translated to performance by the addition of a couple more drive sprocket wheels.

I found several contenders, but their aluminum belly pans and bumpers were either twisted, bent, stretched or all three. I ended up buying a 1973 GP 292 with 765 original miles.
