The Poetical Works of Felicia Dorothea

Hemans 4 Horsemen Publications, Inc. This volume presents a selection from the American and British fiction of the nineteenth century which was evolving into what we now know as science fiction. Taking Frankenstein as its formative work, it assembles stories and excerpts from narratives exploring the complex impact of new technologies like the telegraph and later the cinema, or new scientific practices like mesmerism (hypnotism) and microscopy. The selected authors range from those famous within the realist tradition like George Eliot and Mark Twain to scientists like the physician Silas Weir Mitchell and the inventor Thomas Edison. They repeatedly destabilize their narratives so that some come to resemble scientific records and frequently leave their endings unresolved, encouraging the reader to speculate about their subjects, which include extensions to the senses, new inventions, and challenges to individual autonomy. Many focus on experiments but might combine scientific enquiry with the supernatural, producing hybrid narratives as a result which are difficult to classify.

On October 15, Elizabeth Coombs wakes up from one nightmare to find herself in another ... Her husband and son have gone on a midnight fishing trip and the world outside has changed in subtle but unmistakable ways. There's a freak storm, strange lights in the sky, sounds that don't seem right, and something lurking outside her rental cabin — something that should not be. At first, Liz tries to tell herself it's all in her head, symptoms of her mental illness, symptoms she tries to treat with pills. The same pills her abusive husband derides her for taking. Maybe she's just on edge because, in two days, she secretly plans to take her son and leave with her best friend, going far away where her husband can never hurt them again. Everything will be okay, she tells herself. But then her son returns home alone with no idea where his father is. Just one problem, she knows her son is lying. The boy KNOWS what happened. Why isn't he telling her? October's Gone is a new stand alone book written within the multi-dimensional, post-apocalyptic world of Yesterday's Gone. Read it today! October's Gone Sterling & Stone LLC Beckett Hockey is my life. My focus. My priority. I left Sweden for it five years ago. I ' ve finally been given a shot to prove myself, and I refuse to let anything jeopardize that. No distractions ~ especially not Julia, the stunning woman I can't seem to get out of my mind. Only problem is, she's my coach's daughter. Julia I grew up around hockey. Lived and breathed it, thanks to my dad ' s job. I never thought I ' d fall for a player. Especially one my dad coaches. But there's just something about Beckett that draws me in. Can I convince him he can be the hotshot goalie and find love, without having to choose just one? The hardest shot to defend is the one you never take. I just hope he realizes he can have it all.
